

Launches Moon Probe Displays Huge Missiles Russia Urges Rejection Of U-Weapons

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union displayed giant missiles on the ground and sent one to the moon Sunday in a show of Soviet space might on the 20th anniversary of the defeat of Nazi Germany.

The Kremlin unveiled the new spacepower with an appeal to the world's nuclear powers to renounce forever the use of atomic weapons and a new article on U.S. politics in "The Man and the Stars" by Vladimir Pliginskii.

midnight rocket carried a 3,240-pound electronic instrument package called Luna 3 toward the moon.

The exact time or place of the launch was not disclosed, but it presumably took place about the hour the Kremlin gave its first public display of the missile.

display of weapons. "In the past, the world has seen the military parade in Moscow, the new weapons never seen in public before."

PROGRAM TROUBLE After a 10-minute rehearsal, the rocket was launched. The launch was not without its problems.

It was noted that the earlier feature of the rocket—mass and extra doors—was not included in the earlier tests.

The Soviet leadership marked the anniversary of the end of the war by a letter press appeal addressed to all "Caucasian" republics.

The message was made public by the official Soviet news agency, Tass.

It is necessary to give the way for a German peace settlement, it is necessary to establish a stable European security on the basis of the principles of the peaceful coexistence and brotherly cooperation of states with different social systems.

"This is a serious warning for those who would start to try to follow Hitler's example. The people will utilize all their strength in order to stamp out their domination."

Biggest "gun" in the Soviet arsenal passes through Red Square in Moscow Sunday as the Russians celebrate the 20th anniversary of Victory in Europe Day. It's a 130-foot, three-stage, solid-fuel rocket with intercontinental nuclear capabilities.
