

Space Twins Say Gemini 4 All Set They'll Splash Home Today

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — But apparently one scheduled American high-flying space flight—unhatched and crowded by the debris of more than three days of space travel but still maintaining their senses of humor—Sunshine said she was seeing another mystery satellite in space Saturday night.

They also encountered a small "item" with "a computer on board" the spacecraft. "He didn't switch back stuck at 'on' with the help from the ground. Other means were found to turn the computer off.

After their sound sleep period overnight, the astronauts sounded happy and relaxed and joked with each other and with Gemini control.

"I'm sure tired of looking at my ugly face," McDivitt said. "He needs a shave."

"I'm getting tired of hearing that silly voice, too," McDivitt retorted.

"We're thinking of extending the mission about a week," joked Gemini control.

"All right," said McDivitt's general area where they will splash today. "You better send up some more food."

"You're about over southeast Florida," Gemini control reported.

"I thought it was an island," McDivitt replied.

The Gemini 4 spacecraft is due to splash down into the Atlantic at 12:14 p.m. EST Monday—completing early 36 hours of flight.

The mission recovery ships of the U.S. Navy are already in the general area where they will splash today. "You better send up some more food."

"You're about over southeast Florida," Gemini control reported.

"I thought it was an island," McDivitt replied.

The Gemini 4 spacecraft is due to splash down into the Atlantic at 12:14 p.m. EST Monday—completing early 36 hours of flight.

The mission recovery ships of the U.S. Navy are already in the general area where they will splash today.

Check Medical Reports

Dr. Charles A. Berry, flight surgeon for Gemini 4, points out progress on medical reports of Astronauts James McDivitt and Edward White to Dr. Hubertus Strughold, right, chief scientist at the Aerospace Medical Center, Brooks AFB, San Antonio, Tex. Dr. Strughold visited the Manned Spacecraft Center in Houston Sunday. (AP Wirephoto)

Taylor Heads For U.S., Artillery Rips Red Unit

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor left Sunday night for Washington for consultations which had been delayed 10 days as a result of the troubled political situation here.

He had no comments for pressmen and spent the last few minutes at the airport in private conversation with Deputy Ambassador U. Alexis Johnson and Bud Dism, one of Premier Phan Huy Quat's top aides.

The political situation here was still troubled but Taylor apparently felt it was safe to leave. An aide said he would remain in Washington for one week.

A crisis involving Quat's Cabinet apparently had been solved.

Prayer For Today

We praise Thee, we bless Thee, O God, for the light of faith which Thou hast caused to be set in the midst of darkness. When the storm strikes, and the winds blow, shelter that flame in the cup of Thy hand; for without that light we cannot find our way. O Jesus, Thou light of the world, lead us into the way that is everlasting. Amen.

—Scott Brewer, Philadelphia, Pa., editor, Today, Wednesday Evening

News, Features On The Inside

The Weather
Fair and warm today. Cloudy, humid Tuesday. Complete report on Page 11.

MAINE EMPLOYMENT and personal incomes are rising at a faster than normal rate, says business reporter Frank Sleeper on Page 12.

OPPOSITION TO JOHNSON THROUGHOUT COUNTRY found weaker and more divided than during last presidential election. Page 20.

THREE PROMINENT MAINE WOMEN presented Deborah Morton Awards at 134th Commencement of Westbrook Junior College. Back Page.

Classified	17
19-21	15
Letters	12
Hours	17
Comics	18
Crossword	9
Deaths	8
Editorials	12
Graham	9
Gorm	18
Horoscope	18
Jumble	18

Today's Chuckle

Love is a many-spend-ing thing.

DIAL
775-3151
Classified Advertising
8 A.M. - 5 P.M.
FOR ALL OTHER DEPARTMENTS
DIAL
775-5811

'Come, Let Us Reason Together' LBJ Urges All Reds Renounce War

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson urged Communists around the world Sunday to "signify to mankind that you are ready, too, to welcome peace in the table of man."

In a speech at the 76th annual commencement at the Catholic University of America, Johnson said this country and the rest of the free world "are ready, as we are always ready, to open the door and invite peace to enter, to dwell in the house of all nations forever."

"On this Sunday morning, then I would say to the people—and to the leaders—of the Communist countries, to the Soviet Union, to the nations of Eastern Europe and Southeast Asia, we extend to you our invitation. Come now, let us reason together," he said.

"A peace kitchen, our door is unshuttered. Our table is set. We are ready—and we believe mankind is ready with us."

"So we wait only for those of the human family who have renounced their doors and closed able to know before that war serves no necessary end for anyone on earth. I do not believe it is pleasing in the sight of God for men to separate morally from their faith."

Johnson said that "America's only interests in the world today are those we regard as inseparable from our moral duties to mankind."

He described America today as "morally aware, morally aroused—an America determined to end at home the compromise of its own moral life, which has, for much too long, given evidence to those who doubt us or misrepresent us elsewhere in the world."

"Sure of its moral purpose—sure of its own moral performance—America shall not be deterred from doing what must be done to preserve this last peace man shall ever have to win or lose."

He said "the highest morality of nations—the sobriest posture which great powers can put behind their great power—is restoring relations within the human family."

able to know before that war serves no necessary end for anyone on earth. I do not believe it is pleasing in the sight of God for men to separate morally from their faith."

Johnson said that "America's only interests in the world today are those we regard as inseparable from our moral duties to mankind."

He described America today as "morally aware, morally aroused—an America determined to end at home the compromise of its own moral life, which has, for much too long, given evidence to those who doubt us or misrepresent us elsewhere in the world."

"Sure of its moral purpose—sure of its own moral performance—America shall not be deterred from doing what must be done to preserve this last peace man shall ever have to win or lose."

He said "the highest morality of nations—the sobriest posture which great powers can put behind their great power—is restoring relations within the human family."

able to know before that war serves no necessary end for anyone on earth. I do not believe it is pleasing in the sight of God for men to separate morally from their faith."

Johnson said that "America's only interests in the world today are those we regard as inseparable from our moral duties to mankind."

He described America today as "morally aware, morally aroused—an America determined to end at home the compromise of its own moral life, which has, for much too long, given evidence to those who doubt us or misrepresent us elsewhere in the world."

"Sure of its moral purpose—sure of its own moral performance—America shall not be deterred from doing what must be done to preserve this last peace man shall ever have to win or lose."

He said "the highest morality of nations—the sobriest posture which great powers can put behind their great power—is restoring relations within the human family."

able to know before that war serves no necessary end for anyone on earth. I do not believe it is pleasing in the sight of God for men to separate morally from their faith."

Johnson said that "America's only interests in the world today are those we regard as inseparable from our moral duties to mankind."

He described America today as "morally aware, morally aroused—an America determined to end at home the compromise of its own moral life, which has, for much too long, given evidence to those who doubt us or misrepresent us elsewhere in the world."

"Sure of its moral purpose—sure of its own moral performance—America shall not be deterred from doing what must be done to preserve this last peace man shall ever have to win or lose."

He said "the highest morality of nations—the sobriest posture which great powers can put behind their great power—is restoring relations within the human family."

Two U.S. Marine helicopters collided just after taking off from the amphibious assault ship two Jims and plunged into the South China Sea. All eight Marines aboard were feared dead. The accident occurred off the Chu Lai beachhead, 33 miles south of Da Nang.

American and Vietnamese warplanes pummeled North Viet Nam with bombs and rockets during a series of raids throughout the day. Heavy damage was reported inflicted on Dong Hoi airfield, 30 miles north of the 17th parallel. Other attacks were on bridges, supply depots and highway routes.

Two A1 Skyraiders attacked barges in the Song Ma River, 7 1/2 miles southwest of Vinh.

First Good Swimming Day

Youngsters took advantage of 80-degree temperatures Sunday to dip into the Deering Oaks pool. The pond recently received a thorough cleaning. Weeds were scraped out and a layer of gravel put in. (By Staff Photographer James)

Five Maine Colleges Award Degrees

Colby: WATERVILLE (AP) — Secretary-General U. Thant of the United Nations said Sunday that some old struggles of man have been won, but the most crucial struggle of the century is yet to be conquered.

"The struggle to narrow the gap between the developed and less developed countries, between the haves and have-nots in the world is the most crucial and most challenging struggle of our century," Thant said in an address prepared for the Colby College commencement.

Thant was one of eight persons receiving honorary degrees at Colby's 144th commencement. He received a doctorate of laws.

Others awarded the LL.D. degrees were Ambassador Edw. M. Kennedy and Ambassador L.L. Coldwell. (Continued on Page 19; 1st Col.)

Bates: LEWISTON (AP) — Medical Biologist Hudson Hoagland called Sunday for a "renforchable supranational law against war."

Dr. Hoagland, executive director of the Worcester, Mass. Foundation for Experimental Biology, said "this means world government with the sovereignty of nations in regard to their war-making potential subordinated in a way similar to that of our states in relation to our federal government."

"This means an armed international police force powerful enough to prevent war," Hoagland said.

Hoagland prepared his remarks for an address at Bates College's 99th commencement, at which he received an honorary doctorate of science. (Continued on Page 19; 1st Col.)

St. Joseph's: WINDHAM — Graduates of St. Joseph's College were told at commencement exercises here Sunday that part of the responsibility of high education is to develop programs to bring human dignity and brotherhood into the mainstream of American life.

Dr. Jerome H. Holland, president of Hamilton V.I. Institute, addressed the graduates at which an enlightened citizenry is the basis of a representative form of government and individual freedom.

"This pattern of living cannot be maintained if millions of human beings are not given an equal opportunity to participate," he declared. "No man is an island — each must make a contribution, if any, and be accepted by the world." (Continued on Page 19; 6th Col.)

Nasson: SPRINGVALE — A record graduating class of 111 members were awarded degrees at Nasson College's 53rd annual commencement Sunday afternoon at the Memorial Student Activity Center.

Midway Kaulman, author, warned graduates that "education is a process—not a product and you have not completed your education now."

The author, also an assistant professor of English at the Borough of New York Community College, urged the graduates to "continue to ask questions for which there are no answers, seek things that you cannot find, pursue learning for learning's sake."

"We are the future," he said. (Continued on Page 8; 2nd Col.)

Dirksen To Seek Funds To Bolster Chiang Troops

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, R-Ill., said Sunday he will push for Senate approval of a $100-million addition to the foreign aid bill to "sharpen up" Chiang Kai-shek's armed forces in Formosa.

The Senate resumes debate on the $1.35-billion authorization measure Monday with indications there will be lengthy discussion of it.

Dirksen, the Senate Republican leader, said he has received advice from highly placed military sources that an increase of the 600,000-man free Chinese force in fighting trim might deter the Red Chinese from intervention in Viet Nam.

"It seems logical to me that the Chinese Communists would hesitate to commit themselves militarily in Viet Nam if they knew that a crack fighting force was on the alert at their flank," Dirksen said. "I have been told by military leaders that this might be a good form of insurance against intervention."

Dirksen said in an interview he had no reaction from the White House in the introduction to the foreign aid authorization bill which he introduced Friday. But he said he discussed it with Chairman J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and received what he regards as a favorable reaction.

Because the amount of military aid allotted to individual countries is classified information, Dirksen said he could not say what the OAS would do. But he indicated the $100 million would be a substantial addition to the bill's quota.

Dirksen said he is not sold on an amendment proposed by Fulbright to channel most military aid to Latin-American nations through the Organization of American States.

The Fulbright proposal would require military assistance to be furnished "to the maximum extent feasible" in accordance of joint plans approved by the OAS.

Dirksen said he doubts very much that U.S. military leaders would approve of an arrangement under which the OAS would set up aid quotas and decide where they money would be spent.

"This would take away from our military the decision on where and what kind of aid would be furnished," Dirksen said. "I'm not sold on that."

Elliot Is Unanimous Choice As President

THREE HERALD BUREAU WASHINGTON — Trustees of George Washington University Sunday unanimously elected President Lloyd H. Elliot to head their school. There were 27 or 34 trustees present.

Dr. Elliot, president of the university nearly seven years, revealed his resignation Saturday at a meeting of the Georgetown Alumni Association at Drono.

A spokesman for George Washington University said Dr. Elliot would resign to assume the post Jan. 1.

BILLY GRAHAM
See the world-renowned Evangelist on His Home Channel from Honolulu
9:00 P.M.
TONIGHT
Channel 13