Supt. Jorgensen Proposes Laymen's Group To Aid School Committee In Forming Policy

By WILLIAM H. WILLIAMSON
City Hall Reporter

The city's new school superintendent, Dr. Eugene C. Jorgensen, told members of the School Committee Monday night he wants to form an advisory committee of laymen to aid the panel in its policy deliberations.

In his first report to the panel, Jorgensen said he hopes to put into action the proposal made in 1964 that such a committee be formed. That proposal was included in an administrative reorganization. The committee, he said, would serve as a representative body dealing with issues, problems and aspirations of most Portland citizens.

Although it would be purely advisory, it would:

1. Serve as a sounding board for present educational policies and problems.
2. Candidly assist and advise the school panel in defining policies.
3. Advise the school administration as needed.
4. Help defend the public schools from irresponsible attacks.

Jorgensen said he has attempted to become familiar with the problems facing the school department, and that officials should be skeptical of any who pretend to have easy, quick answers for these problems.

- As sample problems he listed:
1. What is our policy on grouping?
  2. What is the role of a school panel member?
  3. What is the curriculum? Who plans it?
  4. Why do schools cost so much?
  5. Why don't the schools teach sex education?
  6. When will educational spending level off or reach a plateau?

Jorgensen described the present as an era of rapid change. "Our generation has witnessed some truly astounding changes concerning the role of education in a democracy. While only a few short years ago 'school' was the required activity for the young people and a relatively small number directed to college and graduate school — today public education is recognized by our most learned economists as well as our political leaders as our greatest community investment and our most effective cold war weapon," he said.

Two Missile Sites Ringing Hanoi Destroyed By Air Force Planes

SAIGON, Tuesday (UPI) —

U. S. Air Force warplanes flew through a hail of Communist ground fire and destroyed two Russian-built surface-to-air SAM missile sites ringing the North Vietnamese capital of Hanoi, a military spokesman disclosed today.

The F105 Thunderchiefs struck Monday with 3.75 inch rockets at the sites, one 30 miles west-northwest of Hanoi and the other 41 miles northwest of the city.

Pilots reported that at the site nearest Hanoi, there was one large secondary explosion that sent a sheet of flame racing across the entire launch pad. One of the missiles on the launcher also was destroyed. The planes destroyed the radar control van at the second missile site, the most important part of a launching facility, and heavily damaged other equipment.

Ground fire was reported heavy at one site and moderate at the other with no report of any American planes being lost.

In the ground war, an American military spokesman said that a government Ranger battalion hit by wave after wave of attacking Communists Monday suffered heavy casualties but still managed to beat the Viet Cong off.

This attack against the Rangers was one of five Communist offensive against Vietnamese and American bases. The official body count still stood at 140 Viet Cong killed, but a government spokesman said this was only because the embattled Rangers had no chance to get outside their perimeter and count the hundreds of Viet Cong known to have been killed by ground fire and aerial fire.

An estimated 500 Viet Cong were reported killed by the allies defending bases and positions throughout South Vietnam.

But one of the Viet Cong attacks were beaten back. In one small attack, the Communist Division soldiers overran a Vietnamese post defended by popular force militiamen.

In the rugged central highlands near Cambodia, last Air Cavalry Division soldiers pressed their hunt for the remnants of the North Vietnamese troops who had killed and received the war's deadliest blows in heavy fighting last

Powerful, Humble Pause In Memory Of Kennedy

WASHINGTON (AP) — At his hillside grave, in the snowy streets of West Berlin, in a Rio De Janeiro hotel and in the Dallas street where he was shot, the powerful and the humble paused Monday to commemorate the life and death of John F. Kennedy.

In churches of all faiths, from Boston to Los Angeles, Americans gathered for memorial services dedicated to the young president assassinated two years ago.

President Johnson, whose presidency dates from the moment Kennedy died, recalled that time at an interfaith service in St. Mary's Roman Catholic church in Fredericksburg, Tex. "No one of us who lived on that terrible November day will ever be able to forget what happened then or what we lost there," Johnson said.

In her New York City apartment Mrs. John F. Kennedy remained in seclusion.

But the children, Caroline, 8 and John Jr., 5, went to school as usual.

Mrs. Kennedy's was the first floral remembrance placed Monday at the Arlington National Cemetery graveside. Her mother, Mrs. Hugh D. Auchincloss, brought a bouquet of small white lilies, and placed the widow's offering at the base of the eternal flame that flickers over the grave.

Mrs. Auchincloss came early on a gray, rainy morning. She knelt for a few moments, and placed the lilies at the headstones of the two Kennedy infants, buried beside their father. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts came early in the afternoon to place bouquets of white carnations and chrysanthemums.

Kennedy and his wife went inside the white picket fence and knelt at the grave. Kennedy, his back injured in an airplane crash, had trouble rising, and his wife helped him.

Kennedy's other brother, Sen. Robert F. Kennedy of New York, was in Brazil, midway through a South American tour. Some of his children, accompanied by a nursemaid, had placed flowers on the grave Sunday.

All day long a stream of citizens came to Kennedy's grave to pay silent homage. Among them were Mrs. Evelyn Lincoln, for 12 years his secretary, and

Rusk Urges Latin Force For Any Emergency Duty

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) —

Secretary of State Dean Rusk asked the Latin-American nations Monday to earmark forces which could be volunteered for international duty in case of emergencies.

At the same time, Rusk relayed a pledge from President Johnson that the United States is willing to continue helping in economic development of this hemisphere beyond the present 10-year period of the massive Alliance for Progress program. Rusk told the Inter-American Conference of Foreign Ministers that the American nations "ought to be prepared to move fast and effectively, and if possible, together when a dangerous situation arises in the hemisphere."

Aware of some strong Latin-American objections, Rusk added that "none of our governments is prepared to engage its military forces except by a national decision at the highest level. In the light of particular

Rusk spoke shortly after Foreign Minister Gabriel Valdes of Chile said a permanent Inter-American military force "in the long run would be the prelude to the final capture of this hemisphere by communism or the establishment of a permanent

Kidnaped La. Girl Escapes Unharmd, FBI Arrests, Jails Man Minutes Later

BASTROP, La. (AP) —

Freddie Kelly, 8, escaped late Monday from a two-story house where she had been held captive for 24 hours.

The girl, still attired in the red velvet skirt and white blouse she wore when kidnaped from the yard of her home, calmly walked to a nearby nursery and telephoned her mother.

The FBI and local officers quickly arrested a man identified as Douglas Charles Emery, 38, of Bastrop for questioning. He was taken to a jail at Monroe, 22 miles away.

Nancy was rushed home to her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Douglas Kelly. "He was good to me," she told her parents and relatives.

who crowded into the Keller home. "But he locked me in the attic and I couldn't find my shoes."

The motive for the abduction remained a mystery.

Nancy was not sexually molested, the Morehouse Parish (County) Sheriff's office said. Word of her escape touched off a wave of elation in this parish.

U.S. Lists War's Biggest Death Toll

WASHINGTON (UPI) —

The Defense Department Monday released the names of 45 American servicemen killed in Viet Nam. It was the longest list issued in a single day since the United States became involved in the war.

With the exception of the past two weeks, Monday's list was even higher than any previous weekly total of identifications. With announcement of names running three to five days behind actual deaths, since next of kin must first be notified, the 45 listed Monday apparently were killed over a matter of days last week.

All of the dead were Army men. Also identified were one soldier who died of non-combat causes, and three men — one each from the Army, Navy and Air Force — listed as missing in action.

The daily casualty lists issued by the Pentagon have been growing by leaps and bounds as the United States has increased its involvement and the size of its forces in Viet Nam.

The last previous high to be announced on a single day was 31 on Nov. 18.

Names announced last week totaled 113. The week before that the total was 108.

About three-fourths of the Americans killed in the Vietnam war since Dec. 22, 1961, have died this year. The total now stands at 1,229.

The total identified since Oct. 22, taking in the first casualties from heavy fighting around Plei Me, is 361.

Army casualties are running highest. Of the 113 dead identified last week, 180 were with the Army.

Their Cup Of Rice

Two members of the famed Korean Orphan Choir are "at home" with rice and chopsticks at the Pagoda Restaurant Monday. The 37 choir members were guests of the restaurant for dinner prior to their concert in City Hall Auditorium. (Story on Page 11)

Prayer For Today

Father, we thank Thee for making Thysell real to us and for Thy strong hand, which so capably cares for us. Thou hast given us an abundance, and we have often misused it. These have given us opportunity, and we have too many times neglected it. Help us to prove our thankfulness through stewardship and service; in Christ's name. Amen.
